

Sam

30 2 2

Chapter 1 by RedBlueThing

Sam liked to imagine how things might be different. He was a pedestrian man, tetering on middle age, moderately succesful and in his solitary existance, lavish with his own obsessions. Unable to commit to the occasional and passing infatuations with women, cars or any other fragments of the real world, Sam cultivated the less demanding and infinitely more rewarding imaginary worlds that crowded his existance. He poured his substantial salary into comics, toys, movies and games and his own wide screen, surround sound and leather bound heaven to enjoy it all.

Chapter 2 by Danny Rerucha

Sam knew the characters in his comics weren't real, but that didn't stop them from speaking to him. They came at night when he was re-reading The Amazing Spider-Man #1 for the 179th time, and asked him why he lived alone. They came in the morning when he was brushing his teeth, and told him he should really start flossing. They even came when he went to the comic shop down the street, and nudged him inch by inch until he was standing shoulder to shoulder with Susan, Sam's longtime crush. These characters were Sam's dearest friends, and that's why his heart sunk and his breath became short when he thought about forcing them out of his life. Sam's breathing was shallow now. It had to be done tonight or never.

Chapter 3 by Taikey the Gensaur-Inactive, you can have your party now.

But first: How?

I mean, you can't really kill comic characters. You'd have to rip every page that includes them, of all the comic books in the world. Plan A wasn't working.

So then go on to Plan B. Plan B is: See more of Story Wars

Gu/p. Stop reading comics.

That wasn't going to happen.

Plan C, then: Kill the characters that came in real life.

Login

or

Create new account

This was the one.

Write a draft for chapter 4 of 8

 You need to login before writing - click here

Continue the story

☐ Flag as mature

☐ receive feedback

Submit draft

Write a comment...

About

Rooms

Feedback

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account